Press Council condemns destruction of RTTL's vehicle

Televizaun Timor-Leste, August 22, 2017 language source: Tetun

The Press Council of Timor-Leste (CI) has strongly condemned the acts of violence against the country's Public Broadcasting Service (RTTL)'s vehicle during the rally, which the students held at UNTL Campus. Chairperson of the Press Council, Virgilio da Silva Guterres made the comments during a press conference, which was held on Tuesday (22/8) at the Office of the Press Council, Quintal Boot of Dili. Guterres said violence against journalist or any action, which impeded the journalist's activity, was considered to have breached Timor-Leste's Media Law. "The organizer of the rally should try to orientate the demonstrators in order to achieve the goal of the rally regarding the Parliament's decision on selling the state-own cars by auction," he said.

MAHEIN calls for investigation into violence at UNTL Campus

Televizaun Timor-Leste, August 22, 2017 language source: Tetun

MAHEIN Foundation has called on the Government to independently launch an investigation into the acts of violence at UNTL Campus engaging the police members and the protestors. Deputy Director for MAHEIN, Joao Almeida said it was necessary for the Government to investigate the case as the police revealed that they were provoked by the protestors, meanwhile, the protestors said the violence occurred due to the police's provocation. During the rally, numbers of the protestors sustained injuries and fainted as the police fired them using tear gas, he said. On the other hands, numbers of state-own cars and UNTL's window glasses were also destroyed during the rally, he said.

10 university students arrested as police clash with protestors

Independente, August 23, 2017

Ten university students are in prison after being arrested in connection with the destruction of state vehicles during a street protest against alleged government corruption on Monday. As hundreds of university students from Dili converged in front of National Parliament, police swiftly retaliated firing tear gas to disperse the crowd. Police sources defended their response saying protestors were throwing rocks at officers and cars. Up to 13 government vehicles were reportedly damaged. As a consequence members of parliament suspended a planned auction of government cars. Protestors alleged the cars were being deliberately marked down and would cause state losses.

"We are doing this because we are not satisfied that members of parliament are taking such decisions to their own benefit," said Duarte Antonio Nunes from a student organization. He added that more demonstration could take place if the auctions were not called off. Several police officers were injured in scuffles and several protesters detained, officias said, and loud speakers and other equipment were confiscated from the students. Aderito Hugo, President of the national parliament, told local media after the demonstration that the auction had been "temporarily suspended". "I ask public's patience on this issue... so we can review procedures on the use of the cars," Hugo said.

Three political parties at parliament decide to return Prado cars to PN

Independente, August 23, 2017 Language source: Tetun

After Timor-Leste's University Students Movement (MUTL) organized a peaceful rally turned into anarchism, National Parliament (PN) members from CNRT, FRETILIN, and PD decided to return the government cars to PN's administration council. "CNRT Bench decides to return 30 cars used by 30 CNRT members and we decide not to participate in the auction," CNRT Bench Chief, Natalino Da Costa said in a press conference at PN yesterday (22/08). He added CNRT decided to return the cars to PN to contribute to the country's stability.

Meanwhile, FRETILIN Bench at PN also said the cars were still belong to PN and after their mandate ended, they would return those cars to PN. In addition, Democratic Party (PD) Bench Chief, Maria Lurdes Bessa said PD decided to return the cars to PN to be used by new parliament members because the cars were still in good conditions. She added the process of auctioning the cars had caused polemic; therefore Timorese University students went to the street to protest the decision, therefore, PD decided to return the cars. However, until the news was published, parliament members from Frente Mudansa Party had not yet made any declaration regarding the issue. On the other hand, PN President, Aderito Hugo has called on parliament members from four political parties at PN to return the cars to PN administration.

PNTL firing tear gas into UNTL classrooms is against law, Police should free 13 students

Independente, August 23, 2017 Language source: Tetun

The Timorese Human Rights Association (HAK) considers the police officers' act of firing tear gas into Universidade Nacional Timor Lorosa'e (UNTL)'s classrooms during teaching and learning process in an attempt to disperse street protesters in front of UNTL Campus on Monday (21/08) is against the existing law. "The security authority, especially the Timorese National Police (PNTL)'s responsibility is to protect and assure security to everyone, but they acted differently during a clash with street protesters, therefore, an investigation is needed," HAK Representative, Xisto Dos Santos told journalists at his office in Farol, Dili Tuesday (22/08). He lamented police officers fired tear gas to students during a teaching and learning process which caused some students fainted and hospitalized. He added after a clash between police and street protesters happened, civil society organizations were collecting evidences to take the case to the court.

PNTL detains 13 protestors, ten cars damaged

Diário Nacional, August 23, 2017 Language source: Tetun

The Timorese National Police (PNTL) of Dili Municipality has detained 13 protestors of Timor-Leste University Students Movement (MUTL) at police station in Kaikoli on Monday (22/08) to wait for further legal process after the peaceful rally against parliament's decision to auction state-won cars turned into anarchism. "We have arrested 13 protestors, we have investigated them and reported to the public prosecution to wait for further process," said Deputy Commander of PNTL of Dili Municipality, Euclides Belo at PNTL Headquarters in Kaikoli, Dili on Tuesday (22/08). Commander Belo said the anarchism had left ten cars damaged including two state-own cars. However according to Diario's observation at PNTL's headquarter, there were only two state-own cars damaged.

National Parliament decides to cancel the auction of 65 cars

Diário Nacional, August 23, 2017 Language source: Tetun

Members of the parliament of the third legislative have decided to cancel the auction of 65 cars because the decision to auction the cars to parliament members have caused polemic. Natalino dos Santos, Chief of CNRT party at National Parliament (PN) said his party had decided to return 30 cars which used by members of parliament from CNRT party. "After the decision of auctioning the cars cause a great polemic and President of National Parliament ordered to suspend the auction process, CNRT decides to return 30 cars which used by CNRT's parliament members," said Natalino do Santos in a press conference at National Parliament on Tuesday (22/08). He added the decision was made based on their political conscience and to contribute for national stability.

In addition, Vice President of Fretilin, Francisco Miranda Branco said President of National Parliament had ordered to suspend the auction of the car, so they would just use the car until September 5, 2017 and would return those cars to parliament after their mandates ended. The Timor-Leste's University Students Movement (MUTL) appreciated the initiative from parliament members to cancel the process of cars' auction, but they called on the parliament members to return the keys of state-own cars publicly. However, National Parliament administration needs to pay back parliament members' salaries that it cut each month around US$ 800, 00 for the cars maintenance in the last five years, so the state will pay $48,000, 00 to each member of the parliament.

Xanana and Alkatiri's relation is FRETILIN, PLP and KHUNTO's coalition is fixed

Suara Timor Lorosae, August 23, 2017 language source: Tetun

The current relationship between historical leaders Xanana Gusmao and Mari Alkatiri should not be interpreted as pay back to each other because they have responsibility as founders of the country to contribute to the country's development, Deputy President of FRETILIN Party at National Parliament, Francisco Miranda Branco says. He said FRETILIN's request to postpone the inauguration of new members of National Parliament just to respect Xanana Gusmão's departure to abroad to fight for Timor-Leste's sovereignty and it had nothing to do with FRETILIN's coalition with PLP and KHUNTO to form new government. "They have nothing to repay, but they have responsibility and commitment to develop the country forward," Branco said at the National Parliament yesterday (22/08). He added FRETILIN had made decision to form coalition with PLP and KHUNTO and it was fixed, they just needed more time to discuss about common interests.

Timorese People are proud of Xanana's effort to fight for maritime boundary

Suara Timor Lorosae, August 23, 2017 language source: Tetun

Timor-Leste's founding father, Xanana Gusmão's effort to continue negotiating maritime boundary between Timor-Leste and Australia get a lot of supports and appreciations from Timorese people. The Political observer from National University of Timor-Leste (UNTL) Camilo Ximenes said Timorese people supported Xanana's fight for Timor-Leste's sovereignty. "As academics, we always defend what belongs to Timor-Leste, particularly the right of having maritime boundary, we created peace rally before and we always support Mr. Xanana Gusmao who continue fighting for the country's sovereignty, we hope sooner or later Timor-Leste will win the process of negotiation," Ximenes said. He added it was Timor-Leste's right to have sea borders with its neighboring countries, so every Timorese support Xanana's fight to terminate the dispute with Australian government.

If F-FDTL members' contracts end, they needs to leave F-FDTL

Suara Timor-Lorosa'e August 23, 2017 language source: Tetun

President of Committee B (for Defense and Security Issues) David Dias Ximenes said if 500 of the Timorese Defense Force (F-FDTL) members' contracts ended, they needed leave the Timorese Defense Force (F-FDTL) institution and they would not create a problem because they had patriotism and nationalism. Mr Ximenes made the comment regarding the 500 F-FDTL members whose contracts have ended, but F-FDTL Command decided to prolong it because their leaving might increase the number of unemployment. "We need to follow the existing law, if their contracts end, they need to leave the institution, we should not be afraid of them creating problem when they leave F-FDTL," Ximenes told STL at the National Parliament on Monday (21/08).

Civil society coalition criticizes police's action against demonstrators

Radio Timor-Leste, August 21, 2017 language source: Tetun

Representative of civil society coalition, Inocencio Xavier has strongly criticized the National Police Force (PNTL) that used force in responding to the peace rally, which the students held at UNTL Campus. Mr. Xavier said he was concerned about the police's violent action against the protestors as it breached the law and violated human rights. "The security authority should have secured the peace rally, but it did not happen. They should cooperate and communicate with the protestors in order to avoid acts of violence. However, the police fired the demonstrators using tear gas," he said. The students of all universities in the Timorese Capital Dili on Monday (21/8) held the peace rally protesting the Parliament's policy on selling the state-own cars by auction, which according to the public it is against the law.

PNTL uses force to dismiss MUTL rallies, bypassing the campus autonomy

Suara Timor Lorosae, August 22, 2017 Language source: Tetun

The Timorese National Police (PNTL) from Public Order Battalion (BOP) used force to dismiss Timor-Leste's Universities Students Movement (MUTL)'s rally against National Parliament (PN)'s cars auction in front of PN Office yesterday (21/08). According to Minister of Interior, Longuinhos Monteiro, the police received order from the Ministry of Interior to dismiss the rally forcibly after it turned into anarchism. "If there was no anarchism of stoning the state cars, there would be no force used, the manifestation should be disciplined and respectful, that's it, but they stoned the state cars, destroy other people's property, it was not true, therefore, I ordered PNTL to use force when the rally turned into anarchism," Minister Monteiro told journalists at PN Monday (21/08).

On the other hand, a student of Universidade Nacional Timor Lorosa'e (UNTL), Joao Manuel lamented, in an attempt to dismiss the rally, police entered UNTL Campus and shot tear gas to students who were following teaching and learning process in the classrooms. In addition, UNTL Rector, Francisco Miguel Martins said the rally was organized by MUTL not UNTL students, MUTL just used the space in front of UNTL Campus to do manifestation. Responding to MUTL's protest, PN President, Aderito Hugo has ordered PN Administration to revise the price of PN members' cars auction since August 18, 2017.

Some MPs changes state-own cars plates to private plates

Indepedente August 22, 2017 language source: Tetun

The state-own cars that used by People's Representatives (MPs) at National Parliament (PN) have not yet auctioned, but some MPs have changed the cars' plates to private plates amid public's outcry regarding the price of the auction. According to Independente's observation in the field, some of the Prado cars which usually had red plates and written with letter "MP" have been changed to white plate. Timorese civil society and intellectuals have strongly criticized PN's decision to auction the Prado Cars which bought with $63,000 each car to $8,000 per unit to PN members. But PN members seemed to ignore the public outcry and some of them have changed the cars' plates to private plates.

On the other hand, President for National Parliament, Aderito Hugo da Costa said parliament administration council was going to review the car auction price whether it was cheaper or more expensive and it was still under process. "The first collective decision to auction the car with $8,000 has several reasons behind it, but I have ordered to review the price," Mr. Hugo said at PN yesterday (21/08).

New government uncertainty extends into sixth week

Indepedente August 22, 2017

The final make up of Timor-Leste's new government remains unclear, after an abrupt announcement on Sunday from the Fretilin party that it would continue coalition negotiations with political parties. Fretilin, the lead vote winner from 22 July parliamentary election, had suggested it would form a coalition with the People's Liberation Party (PLP) and new youth party KHUNTO in order to gain majority power. The announcement followed a meeting between Fretilin's leader Mari Alkatiri and Xanana Gusmao, the Secretary General for Timorese Reconstruction (CNRT), Timor-Leste second most powerful political force. Alkatiri said his party would not announce the new government as planned, but continue negotiation talks, "We will present the formation government to the president of the republic next week," Alkatiri said on Sunday.

The meeting marks a stark contrast from the stance CNRT made on August 4 when it said it would not form a coalition government. At the time Gusmao said he would also resign as head of the party. "This is the right moment for Fretilin, as the winning party of the 2017 elections, to assume, and with full legitimacy, the reins of government," Gusmao said at the time. The two parties had jointly ruled through a parliamentary majority alliance that Gusmao set-up in 2015. CNRT lost eight seats in Parliament, with Fretilin taking a majority 29,7 percent of vote compared to 29,5 per cent, giving Fretilin leader Mari Alkatiri a narrow victory. Fretilin fell short of winning the 33 seats needed in the 65-seats parliament for one party to rule alone.

Fretilin requests to postpone the Fourth Legislative swearing in ceremony

Diário, August 22, 2017. Language source: Tetun

The most voted party, FRETILIN has requested National Parliament (PN) to postpone the swearing in ceremony for new members of parliament until August 28. President of PN, Adérito Hugo da Costa said FRETILIN needed more time to negotiate with other elected parties to form coalition. "We have set a date to swear in the new PN members for today (yesterday, red) and we have prepared everything, but FRETILIN has submitted a proposal to postpone the inauguration ceremony," Hugo told journalists at the National Parliament on Monday (21/08).

Xanana made the comments after meeting with the Fretilin Party's Secretary-General Mari Alkatiri last Friday (18/8) at Hotel Novo Turismo. Meanwhile, Alkatiri affirmed that Mr. Xanana and his team members would continue working for the process of negotiations as he had experience. "No change to the maritime negotiation team, the chief of the team is brother Xanana and also his team member like the current minister, Agio Pereira," he said.

KAK learns Parliament's resolution on selling cars by auction

Radio Timor-Leste August 18, 2017 language source: Tetun

The Anti-Corruption Commission (KAK) is learning and analyzing the National Parliament's resolution on selling 65 state-own cars by auction, which is suspected of acts of corruption. Deputy Commissioner of KAK, Manuel Bucar made the comments regarding the Student Movement's (MUTL) demand on KAK to launch investigation into the referred case. "The Anti-Corruption Commission is currently collecting data in relation to the Parliament's resolution on selling cars by auction and is learning the case as everything should be based on legality," he said. MUTL also sent an official letter to the president of the republic and the Public Prosecution Office to look at this matter. Meanwhile, Civil Society Coalition called on the country's Audit Court to hold an audit into the Parliament regarding its resolution.

Fretilin to present structure of new govt

Radio Timor-Leste, August 18, 2017 language source: Tetun

The Fretilin party is planning to present structure of new government on Tuesday (22/8) to the President of the Republic. Secretary-General of the Fretilin Party said PLP and Kuntho Parties were confirmed to join the 7th constitutional of Timor-Leste. "I am going to present this structure to the coalition party and also to the president of the republic on Tuesday," he said. Alkatiri added that coalition with PLP and Khunto did not close door for the Democratic Party (PD) and CNRT to join the new government.

Leaders receive million of money and forget about veterans, Lere says

Indepedente August 21, 2017 language source: Tetun

The Timorese Defense Force (F-FDTL) Commander Major General Lere Anan Timur considers the countries' leaders have discriminated veterans. The leaders have received million of money, but they ignore the life condition of veterans who had fought for the country's independence. The former guerilla fighter said the veterans who got reform from F-FDTL institution in 2015 only received $225 per month, but the country's leaders received thousands of dollar after their mandates ended. "Our colleagues who were reformed from F-FDTL in 2015 do not get good attention from the government and they only get $225 per month as their pension, but the country's leaders get thousand to million per month," Lere told journalist at F-FDTL head quarter in Fatuhada, Dili after celebrating the Timorese Liberation Army (FALINTIL)'s Day on Sunday (20/08).

The third legislative MPs are "impotent"

Indepedente August 21, 2017 language source: Tetun

The third legislative members (MPs)' mandates have ended last Friday (18/08). But according to the research from civil society organization, during their mandates in the last five years, these MPs are impotent because they have not yet responded to public's outcry of discussing and approving several significant laws. Executive Director for Human Rights Association, (Yayasan Hak), Manuel Monteiro said the third legislative members were not productive because they did not do their jobs of monitoring government's programs' implementation properly and they did not produce many laws.

Monteiro said people were still concerned about road condition and sanitation including food security, but the MPs was not prioritizing these outcries during their mandate. "Not many laws were produced, for instance, the law of anti-corruption was not approved during their 5-year-mandate in Parliament and corruption continues existing in the country," Mr. Monteiro said at his office, Farol Dili (18/08).

Timor-Leste's ASEAN membership needed for regional identity

Indepedente August 21, 2017

Timor-Leste regional affiliation will remain uncertain if it does not become the eleventh member of the Association Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), said political commentator Dr. Bec Strating. Writing in the interpreter on Friday, the Australian professor of politics said: "as long as Timor-Leste remains outside of ASEAN, its sense of regional identity remains ambiguous." "The perceived value of ASEAN for small states lies in its capacity to ameliorate regional security risks through collective security arrangements, and as a forum for promoting national interests in regional security discussion," Strating said. Strating said Timor-Leste's ascension to the treaty of Amity and Cooperation upon its independence as a state outside of Southeast Asia, Limits its regional inclusion.

Timor-Leste first applied for formal membership of ASEAN in March 2011, while Indonesia was chair. ASEAN membership is conditional on; geographical location; recognition by other states to be bound by the ASEAN charter; and ability and willingness to carry out obligations of membership. "The key challenges for Timor-Leste have been proving its capacity to meet membership obligations of membership.

People from Fretilin to assume the positions of PM, PN president and Minister of Defense

Diário Nacional, August 21, 2017 Language source: Tetun

As the most voted party in parliamentary election, Fretilin has constitutional rights to form new government. Thus, the party has prepared its potential people to assume important posts in the executive and legislative bodies such as Prime Minister (PM), President of National Parliament (PN) and Minister of Defense. Secretary General of Fretilin, Marí Alkatiri said these three positions would be assumed by FRETILIN, because FRETILIN had simply won the election.

"We will assume these three positions," he answered reporter's question with a smile after he attended the 42nd anniversary of FALINTIL in Fatuhada Dili on Sunday (20/08). According to the schedule, the inducting ceremony for new members of parliament will be held on August 21 (Today), but it is postponed because Xanana is in abroad. "The ceremony will be postponed until next week because Xanana is abroad to negotiate the maritime border, he is also elected as member of parliament, so we should respect and wait for him until he comes back," said Marí Alkatiri

"Timorese veterans have awakened the Australian veterans about their struggle during the World War II, I would like thank all Timorese veterans, we hope this initiative will remind people about Timorese people's struggle," said PM Araujo in his speech, at the Timorese Resistance Museum. At the same place the Director of Timor Awakening, Michael Stone said he wanted to make this film because Australian veterans faced many problems and they had learned from Timorese veterans to strengthen their friendship relation.

PM Araujo recognizes doctors and health professionals don't serve patients well

Diário Nacional, August 21, 2017 Language source: Tetun

Prime Minister (PM), Rui Maria de Araújo recognizes that doctors and health professionals in hospital do not serve patients well because they treat patients like tools not human being. "I am calling on health professionals and doctors to think about human aspect when they serve people, and health care as very important aspect and to show our sympathy and attention for those who needs our technical service, in particularly in emergency unit, we should be friendly to serve patients and serve them with smile," PM Araujo said after inaugurating Emergency Unit's room at the Guido Valadares National Hospital (HNGV), on Saturday (19/08). He also recognized it was not the institutional or structural problem, but the problem was on the capacity of each professional. PM Araujo said sometimes with a smile from doctors and health workers could reduce 50 % of pain felt by a patient and could make them feel comfortable with small things done by doctors.
